Themes of the day will be starting from an engineering viewpoint, lining out the potentials of privacy-friendly identity management by using attribute-based credentials (ABCs), and in the following discussing their application areas and needs for standardisation.

The afternoon will trade perspectives and look at different approaches to privacy standardisation, such as privacy seals, impact assessments as well as traditional IT-security-driven approaches.

A draft agenda of the day is attached to this invitation. Admission is free, but attendance limited to 50. Please RSVP by January, 11th, 2013 using the attached form.
